

HB 5915

To Whom It May Concern:

I am contacting you to support proposed house bill 5915 allowing nationally certified homeopaths the right to practice homeopathy in Connecticut. I have personally had very positive experiences with homeopathy in conjunction with visiting my physician. However, there are very few professionals within convenient driving distance from my home that I can visit that have significant knowledge of homeopathy. I was surprised to discover that Connecticut is one of the only states in the country that does not allow certified layperson homeopaths to practice homeopathy. And I understand that there is a bill before the legislature asking for nationally recognized CCH homeopaths to be recognized in our state. Education about the benefits and proper applications of homeopathy is something the residents of Connecticut surely need in order to supplement and accelerate healthcare reform while improving the overall health and well-being of our residents. It is known throughout the world that classic homeopathy is by far one of the safest, most effective, and clinically proven forms of wellness treatment available today and is accepted as standard practice in almost every state in the US.

Why must I travel extensively to find a qualified homeopath to have access to this effective form of treatment? If certified homeopaths were allowed to practice in CT, it would assist greatly in the growing demand for alternative forms of treatment in our region. I am convinced through personal experience and through observations in others who have received homeopathic treatment, that homeopathy is a safe and gentle solution which complements conventional medicine and can improve our healthcare delivery system.

Thank you for your consideration.

Regards,

Bob DeLisa
